ReportsGermansResentOfferOf Some To Make Amends To Jews

The statement of the principle of religious tolerance that accompanied the offer by the West German Government to make financial restitution for the Nazi persecution of the Jews has revived a discussion of anti-Semitism in Germany.

Six years after the end of the war, most Allied observers agree that Anti-Semitism continues to exist in Germany. It often reveals itself in crude vandalism against Jewish cemeteries or brutal attacks in speech and in print by extremists.

However, interviews of leading persons reveal also a concensus that most anti-Semitic acts in Germany are "regurgitations" from the past. In the opinion of United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy, for example, the fact that so many voices within Germany are heard decrying acts of anti-Semitism illustrates the advancement of recent years, reports the New York Times.

A deep impression arising from conversations with Germans everywhere is the sensitivity toward the German record of racial persecution. It is indicated by many persons who otherwise seek to justify a good deal of Hitler's political policies. Even the neo-Nazi Socialist Reichs party philosophers who advocate the "best portions" of the Hitler program carefully stress that they are opposed to anti-Semitism.

[illegible] about thirty thousand [illegible] and [illegible] Germany. This contrasts with pre-Hitler Germany, where Jews attained important cultural, political and financial positions, experts in German affairs pointed out.

An interesting development in this connection is that instead of inveighing against the Eastern Jews as they once did, German anti-Semites refer sarcastically to United States Jews as responsible for many of their postwar ills. United States Jews are said to be responsible for the severities of the occupation.

According to persons who have conducted careful studies in the matter, anti-Semitism in Germany today feeds itself on charges that displaced Jews are engaged in black marketing, that Jews make false restitution claims, that Jews are "favorites" of the Occupation, that world Jewry in general hates Germany.

To counteract these complaints many organizations have been formed, often on German initiative alone, to point out that black marketing continues even after the bulk of Jewish displaced persons has left Germany and that restitutional claims are based on the enormous wrongs committed by the Nazis.

As to the final charge that Jews throughout the world hate Germany, groups engaged in countering anti-Semitism repeatedly implore their fellow Germans to earn the goodwill of the Jews through acts of acknowledgement of Nazi crimes. This has inspired new resentments, however, according to the New York Times.

When a German journalist organized a group called "Peace with Israel" and called upon Germans to combat anti-Semitism with good works, the Deutsche party, one of the three in the Federal Government coalition under Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, issued a statement declaring, "we must not debase ourselves before Israel."

The statement referred resentfully to a meeting of parliamentarians in Istanbul last summer at which representatives of Israel refused to be seated with those of Germany. The statement went on to charge that if one wanted to find "real anti-Semitism" one ought to look at the United States.

The Deutsche party statement [illegible] nevertheless broken it sought good relations here animosity toward the successors to the Hitler regime, "the men who have been trying for years to clear out the differences which lie between the Jews and Germans."

The statement of the Deutsche party, according to many observers, more accurately reflects the German popular attitude than the statement by Chancellor Adenauer of October 27, putting the obligation of spiritual rehabilitation on the German nation.

Interfaith Award Winner Observes Less Bias Now

Fred Lazarus Jr., who received the National Gold Award of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for distinguished service in the field of human relations, said it was a hopeful sign that "many who indulge in routine discriminations are now self-conscious where in the past they were self-righteous."

Mr. Lazarus, president of Federated Department Stores, received the award at a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York. Dwight R. G. Palmer, president of the General Cable Corporation, who made the presentation, praised Mr. Lazarus for his "industrial statesmanship, broad-scale conception of retailing, contributions to American business, liaison efforts between government and retailing, civic activities and philanthropic interests."

The guest of honor, third-generation member of a merchant family that opened a store in 1851 in Columbus, Ohio, is head of the retail empire that includes Bloomingdale's; Abraham & Strauss in Brooklyn, Filene's in Boston, and department stores in Oklahoma City, Houston, Columbus and Cincinnati.

Speakers who lauded the award winner were Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican of Ohio; Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference, and Rabbi Nathan Perilman of Temple Emanu-El. They cited Mr. Lazarus' services to religious and welfare organizations, reports the New York Times.

Mr. Lazarus, in his address, said the struggle against bigotry, intolerance and group pressures had a special meaning and urgency in the present period of national [illegible]. The country's "inner [illegible]" of united [illegible] air [illegible] with strong [illegible], he asserted, was not enough" to guarantee that no aggressor would attack us.

"There are other basic requirements that do not lend themselves to statistics," he said. "Yet without them a country remains weak, divided and confused despite the outward appearance of strength. I refer to the human values that make up the morale of our people and our readiness to defend a set of ideals. Physical and economic might are indispensable. But they are not to be depended upon if they do not rest on a foundation of determination to maintain our true national way of life."

Asserting that American faults and failures in group relations were "gifts to the Kremlin" and anti-American propagandists, Mr. Lazarus warned that "Stalin uses them against us with deadly effect, especially among the races of Asia, Africa and even Latin America, who make up the overwhelming majority of the human race."

Mr. Lazarus asserted the American nation must find "a voluntary unity of ideals shared in freedom if we are to overcome the unity-

Israel Gets Huts For Tent Dwellers

Prime Minister David Ben Gurion's new Cabinet at its first meeting appropriated an undisclosed sum to build wooden huts for immigrant families living in tents. Prefabricated wooden huts being shipped from Austria and Sweden will suffice for 15,000 persons and will accommodate more than half those now living in tents. The tent population is expected to increase as new immigrants continue to arrive.

Villages in the Galilee hills which suffered most in a recent downpour that opened the rainy season, will get top priority. The Jewish Agency for Palestine, the executive arm of the World Zionist Organization that is responsible for immigrant absorption, announced that it is spending $28,000,000 to alleviate the distress among 145,000 inhabitants in the work villages, according to the New York Times.

They have called on the army to provide soldiers to dig drainage ditches to divert expected floods. Israel's equivalent of the WACS will be mobilized to help care for children. The cabinet appointed an interministerial committee to study the supply situation. The new Minister of Commerce, Dr. Dov Joseph, will report on the committee's findings.

Sees Nazi-Trained As Menace In Australia

The problem of German immigration to Australia, despite a series of victories in a campaign initiated by the Australian Jewish community, still remains as a considerable threat to democracy, Benjamin M. Green, president of the Executive Council of Australian Jewry, reported during a visit to New York. Mr. Green, whose representative organization is affiliated with the World Jewish Congress, told the W.J.C. that German immigration is being facilitated by the government of various Australian states and by such public bodies as railroads.

The Germans entering Australia are said to have been "screened" and all members of the Nazi party supposedly winnowed out. However, Mr. Green said, every German lived under the Nazi regime and, since most of the migrants are in their 20s or 30s, studied in Nazi schools. "The presence of large numbers of such Germans, who have assimilated Nazi doctrine, cannot but be a formidable threat to our country with its population of only 8,000,000," he warned.

At the same time, Mr. Green praised the Australian government for its consistent attitude of sympathy for Jewish victims of Nazism and other dictatorships. There has been a steady immigration of Jewish refugees to Australia, he reported, adding that on several occasions the Australian government has relaxed its own regulations in order to facilitate the entry of European Jews.

Mr. Green, a long-time resident of Australia who was born in New Zealand, educated in London, outlined the story of the campaign against German immigration. "At first," he said, "we were a voice in the wilderness. Australia is far from Germany and to [illegible] World War II was [illegible] more real, became a much closer, threat than that of Germany. To the average Australian, Nazism was a wicked thing but something academic which had never touched him. We had to embark upon a program not only of protest but of education."

After Australian Jewry had organized the first in a series of pro-

Was Noted Leader Of Hadassah

Mrs. Miriam Dworsky Lamport, a leader in Zionist and charitable organizations and the widow of Samuel C. Lamport, well-known cotton merchant, died in New York at her home, 1125 Fifth Avenue, after a long illness. She was 65 years old.

Born in New York, Mrs. Lamport was graduated in 1903 from Hunter College. Before her marriage, she was a teacher in the city's public school system and a pioneer in the instruction of retarded children.

She had been for many years a member of the national board of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America. Mrs. Lamport was president of the Samuel C. and Miriam D. Lamport Foundation, a charitable and educational trust created in her husband's will.

In 1934, she was co-chairman of a building-fund campaign to raise $200,000 for the Hadassah University Hospital of Palestine. A founder-member of the Society for the Advancement of Judaism, Mrs. Lamport had been founder-chairman of its women's group.

She had worked for and contributed to many other organizations, including the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, Yeshiva University, Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York and the Lighthouse of the New York Association for the Blind. Much of Mrs. Lamport's life story was told by her daughter, Mrs. Felicia Lamport Kaplan of Cambridge, Mass., in her best-selling book of last year, "Mink on Weekdays," which won wide critical praise.

Surviving also are another daughter, Mrs. Sarah Lamport Asrael of Baltimore, formerly a member of the news staff of The New York Herald Tribune; three brothers, Moses P., Philip and Harold P. Dworsky, of New York; three sisters, Mrs. Rayles Kellner, Mrs. Stella Phillips and Mrs. Blanche Ratner of New York; and two grandchildren.

A.J.C. Head Tells How Germany Can Convince Of Intent To Pay

An eight-point program through which West Germany can make moral and material amends for crimes committed by Nazis against Jews was proposed by Jacob Blaustein, president of the American Jewish Committee, at the committee's two-day fall executive committee meeting in Chicago, Ill.

The program, which was discussed unofficially with representatives of the State Department after West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer conceded Germany's responsibility for Nazi actions, according to the New York Herald Tribune, includes the following proposals:

1. Elimination of all Nazi and neo-Nazi organizations in Germany. This point has assumed considerable significance in recent days because of the strength shown by the Socialist Reich party, a neo-Nazi group, in the recent Bremen elections.

2. Development of a government-sponsored educational campaign to promote tolerance and respect for religious liberty among the German people.

3. The strengthening of laws to outlaw religious and racial persecution and to punish purveyors of anti-Semitic propaganda.

4. Government assistance to those Jews remaining in Germany to help them maintain their religious, cultural and social institutions.

5. Establishment within the German government of an agency to supervise continuously the observance of civil rights in Germany and to propose measures for the advancement of these rights.

6. Lump sum settlement to the remaining Jewish communities in Germany to be realized from heirless and unclaimed property.

7. Germany should begin negotiations immediately with representatives of Israel and Jewish [illegible]

Great Britain, France and other democratic countries to help defray the expenses to which these countries and organizations were put in resettling Jews displaced by the Nazis.

8. To bar all former active Nazis from participation in the educational, diplomatic and army life of Germany.

Discussing the program, Mr. Blaustein said: "Obviously action and not just lip service can be the only proof for measuring Germany's genuine attachment for democracy. The fact that the Socialist Reich party, closest approach to the Nazi party that exists in Western Germany today, made significant gains in the Bremen state elections only five days ago is further cause for doubt as to the German people's will to implement what their government leaders have pledged.

"The American Jewish Committee, as an agency engaged in the protection of the civil and religious rights of Jews, is keenly appreciative of the efforts of the Allied authorities, particularly in the American zone, and we are certain they will continue to do all in their power to bring about the fullest realization on the part of the German people that there is now an acute need to translate Chancellor Adenauer's declaration into immediate and concrete action.

"The fact that Chancellor Adenauer was strongly supported by President Heuss and other influential leaders signifies [illegible] that the pledge expresses the genuine intent of important segments of the German people. Nevertheless, only forthright action in implementing it will convince the democratic peoples of the world that Germany is ready and fit to enter the family of freedom-loving nations."

To Plant Flax In Negev

The harvesting of the first flax grown in Israel recently, details of which were given by the American Friends of the Hebrew University, draws attention to the work being carried out at the University's School of Agriculture. The school experiments with the cultivating of flax, a source of linen thread, linseed oil and straw which can be utilized for the manufacture of paper.

With this purpose in mind, in 1949 the Israel Research Council made a special grant to Professor Menko Plaut, chairman of the School. As a result, the scope of the experiments in which the Government's Agricultural Research Station at Rehovoth participated, broadened extensively. Specimens of flax from various parts of the world were brought to Rehovoth for testing, and in the autumn of 1950, Professor Plaut visited Holland, Belgium, Denmark, England, and Switzerland to establish contact with world specialists in the cultivation of this plant.

By the close of the year, 1,000 dunams were sown at Kibbutz Hatsor near Gedera and one month ago, amid special ceremonies, were harvested with modern equipment flown over from Belgium. The value of the crop is estimated at $100,000. Although planted a month later than originally planned, in unirrigated soil, the fibres grew to almost 36 inches in height. The School is now planning the crop for next year when it hopes to plant 10,000 dunams of land to be increased, within four years, to 100,000, mainly in the Negev area.

To protect industrial workers against the occupational hazards, there are many safeguards developed through long experience and study. Every worker should avail himself of safety devices provided for his protection.

TO PLANT "FOREST OF THE SIX MILLION"

Six hundred delegates, representing five hundred Jewish lodges, fraternal orders, family-circles and other mass-organizations, pledged their support to the Forest of the Six Million which is to be planted by the Jewish National Fund in the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv corridor. It will be in commemoration of the six million Jewish martyrs who were done to death by the Hitler hordes in the course of the last World War. The delegates raised their right arms, vowing never to forget the atrocities which the Nazis perpetrated upon the Jewish people, culminating in the destruction of a third of World Jewry.

The conference was presided over by Dr. Joseph Tenenbaum, president of the World Federation of Polish Jews and addressed by Dr. Harris J. Levine, President of the Jewish National Fund of America, Congressman Emanuel Celler, Judge Jonah J. Goldstein, D. L. Meckler, Editor of the Morning Journal; Mendel N. Fisher, executive director of the Jewish National Fund; Herbert L. Sussman, president of the Federation of the Galician Jews in America; Dr. S. Margoshes, M. Rudensky, and Moshe Chaim, secretary of the Landsmanschaften Division of the Jewish National Fund. A resolution adopted by the conference of Jewish organizations called upon every Jew in the United States to plant at least one tree in the Forest of Six Million.

The Falashas Want To Go To Israel

BY MARTIN LYONS

"The some 18,000 Falashan Jews of Ethiopia have received a message that the Messiah has arrived, and are ready to emigrate from that distant and mysterious land which is ruled by 'The Lion Judah'," Dr. Henry Shoskes, special HIAS overseas representative, reported on his return to the United States following a stopover in Ethiopia on his way back from Johannesburg, South Africa. Asked about the black, and almost forgotten, Jews of the mountainous and volcanic country, he reported that while in Addis Ababa he discussed at length the situation of the Jewish tribes now living near the city of Gondora some 300 miles from the Ethiopian capital. He stated:

"There is some variance regarding the source of origin of these so-called black Jews. Some authorities feel they are descendants of a regiment of guard soldiers given by King Solomon to the Queen of Sheba on her return to Ethiopia. Another source ascribes them to the remnants of the Ten Lost Tribes which were expelled from ancient Israel, and have left no proved historical trace of their ultimate fate."

Since their arrival in Ethiopia the Jews have inter-married with the native Ethiopians but have retained their ancient religion. Although they cannot read or write Hebrew, they observe their religion through the Torah, which is inscribed in the old Abyssinian tongue known as Geez. The HIAS representative said he had interviewed several Falashan leaders regarding their recent petition to Israel to permit their return to what they termed "their mother land." In discussions with Mafuria Seggae, an executive of the Ethiopian post office department, and Rahava Dea, an employee of the Ministry of Finance, he learned that the Jews of Ethiopia regard themselves as deacendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the patriarchs of Ancient Israel.

"They claim that their physical characteristics and physiognomies are no criteria of their origin," Dr. Shoskes reported. "As the German Jews acquired Nordic features; the Spanish Jews acquired Castilian features; the Yemenite Jews, Arabic features; so the Ethiopian Jews have acquired the appearance of the native Ethiopians during the past twenty-five centuries." He asserted that "regardless of their appearance, they regard themselves as Jews, and hold to the traditional Jewish beliefs. It again proves that Jews are not changed by time nor distance, although their physical appearances were changed almost beyond recognition by the march of the centuries."

Asked of the possibilities of Falashan Jewish immigration to Israel, the HIAS representative said that while he was in Jerusalem, Zalman Shazar, Minister of Education, had expressed the opinion that a number of Falashan Jews will undoubtedly be permitted to enter that country. The same opinion was voiced by Dr. Mark Faitlovitch, one of the first of the modern world to make contact with the Falashas about 50 years ago. They did stress that immigrants to Israel from Ethiopia would be expected to pass physical examination.

Dr. Shoskes closed the interview with the opinion that "in the ingathering and homecoming of the Children of Israel, from the four corners of the earth, the Falashans cannot be ignored."

N.Y. BNAI BRITH GIVES AWARD TO WORKER FOR SCHOOLS

Roy E. Larsen, president of Time and Life and chairman of the National Citizens Commission for the Public Schools, received the 1951 award for humanitarian activities of the Metropolitan Council of Bnai Brith at its seventh annual conference at the Astor Hotel, in New York.

The award, calling attention to Mr. Larsen's "invaluable contributions to human welfare—and his conscientious devotion to the traditional American ideals of freedom," was signed by Sydney A. Hallenbrand, president of the council, and Arthur G. Rosenbluth, secretary. For the last several years Mr. Larsen has been seeking to evoke interest in public schools. His commission is comprised of leaders in industry, business and labor.

Mr. Larsen told 2,000 representatives and officers of 210 lodges and chapters of the Metropolitan Council that by raising "our schools to new standards of intelligence—not only standards of physical excellence on buildings, equipment, financing—but new standards of teaching personnel, of intellectual and moral experience, we will inevitably help to raise the level of our whole American way of life."

TELLS UNIONS TO WORK FOR FAIR PLAY LAWS

Industry, labor and religion can aid greatly in eradicating discrimination and prejudice in America by attacking the problem jointly, speakers agreed at the Seminar on Human Relations sponsored by the United Steelworkers of America, C. I. O., and Pennsylvania State College.

Rabbi Morris Kertzer, director of Inter-Religious Activities of the American Jewish Committee, stated that while religious groups must make their influence felt, unions should develop educational programs on a grass-root level, using every modern educational device and technique to write into the law books the application of the principles of justice and fair play.

Regular hours for sleeping, feeding, exercise and outdoor airings should govern an infant's early life. The doctor or well-baby clinic will advise as to correct feeding and also the vitamins and fruit juices necessary to augment the regular food.

Grabbing a cup of coffee just before dashing off to the office is an all-too-common practice and does not help to build up resistance against those winter colds. Fruit juice, hot whole-grain cereal, egg, with toast and hot beverage, are great aids in avoiding winter chills and sniffles.

In The Beginning

What is the origin of the earth and life on earth? This question man has grappled with ever since he began to think. The first chapter of Genesis is the Jewish story of how life might have originated. Most ancient peoples have had their own traditions about the beginning of things. The Babylonians, the Romans, the Phoenicians and the Greeks developed their own stories of creation. For them usually the gods emerged from pre-existent chaos. But the Jewish story differs from all other accounts in that it tells of One God as the creator of the world, not by chance but by will. The Jewish story is a poetic description of creation and rather emphasizes how man first began to think as to the origin of life on earth. The author was, indeed, a great genius and this story of creation contains some of the most fundamental beliefs of Judaism.

The story of creation is not in conflict with evolution. Nor need we try to harmonize this story of a six-day process and declare these six days to be ages and thus say that it is not in conflict with science. The Bible to begin with is not a text book on science. It is a book of ethical teachings containing stories, parables, poetry, history, and legend. Primarily, it is the spiritual biography of the Jewish people in its search for God.

The Bible, being a human collection of books which took about a thousand years in its development, is therefore not infallible. Divine truth which it contains is always the same, the form in which it is represented differs because the medium is human. The Bible suffered very often at the hands of its friends because they made of it a text book of science, a fetish and what not!

Because of misinterpretations the Bible has often been misused. Thus when Christopher Columbus sought to discover a Western passage to the Indies, was he not bitterly opposed by the theologians? They took that beautiful poetic 19th Psalm and made geography out of it. Harvey, in 1698, proclaimed his epoch-making discovery of the circulation of the blood. For this churchianity attacked him. Thus the human mind, thinking about anatomy, misused the Bible as its final appeal. In 1798 Jenner made the remarkable discovery of vaccination as a defense against small-pox. Immediately the Bible was improperly used to attack the scientific advance. Was not man made in the image of God? We dare not scratch or disfigure the human body! Theologians, too, objected to anaesthetics with expectant mothers because of the curse, "In pain shalt thou bring forth thy children."

Well do we recall that Servitus was burned at the stake in Geneva in 1553 by the Protestant Calvin, because Servitus was found guilty of heresy, and one of the charges against him was that he believed the statement of a Greek geographer that Judea was a barren country. And do not the Scriptures tell us that Judea was a "land flowing with milk and honey?" And the fundamentalists of the synagogue may be reminded, also, that they excommunicated a Spinoza because he dared to be liberal and interpret Scripture in his own light.

There is nothing un-Jewish in the evolutionary concept which teaches that man arose from a simple origin. How remarkable all the more is the concept of the One God as the creator who has placed the potentialities in a jellyfish so that in the process of time out of that jellyfish the world was blessed with a Moses, an Isaiah, a Shakespeare, and an Einstein. In fact evolution confirms the story of Genesis. What better story have we as to the origin of life than that set forth in Holy Scriptures? The scientists stand baffled at the mystery of life and the mystery of death. With all our boast of knowledge man cannot even create a blade of grass, a simple flower. Indeed, the greatest of scientists of today posit an Intelligence at work in the universe.

The second great doctrine which the first chapter of Genesis proclaims is that man constitutes the crown of creation. As the Psalmist speaks, "Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels and crowned him with glory and honor." Man, as the Midrash points out, is both a child of heaven and a child of dust. He differs from all other creatures in that he is endowed with a mind and a soul. Hence, man is to "subdue the earth" by the power of his soul. Alas, too often, because man forgot his soul, the earth has been converted into a jungle and inhumanity has reigned supreme. The world at present is in danger of being converted into chaos and void unless man rediscovers his soul and his God-given qualities.

And still another great doctrine which the first chapter of Genesis proclaims is that of the goodness of the world. Our world is, indeed, a goodly habitation. Even the sorrows and the disappointments constitute helpful factors in the pattern of life. Because man has to struggle with evil and overcome evil therein lies the opportunity for the building of character. Even death is good, say the Rabbis, and is to be looked upon as part of the life process formulated in the poetic story of creation.

And last, but not least, the great Jewish doctrine of the Sabbath, "the queen of days", is formulated in the Genesis story. Man, through a Sabbath, thus consecrates work and is ever to regard work as one of the choicest blessing in life.

It is only he who is a slave to his work who knows not the delight of a Sabbath for he has not the discipline of Sabbath observance and reduces his whole life to a mechanical state and an animal existence when neither in home, church or synagogue he observes a day of rest and a day for spiritual uplift.

"In the beginning God created". This, indeed, according to the French scientist, Cuvier, is the greatest sentence which has ever been written. The world and civilization can only have meaning when we recognize the glory of the everlasting Lord, the God of Eternity, the Creator of the Universe.

by-terror of the totalitarian enemy."

"Recently I had the privilege of discussing this matter in Paris with that great American, General Dwight Eisenhower," he said. "Although he is concentrating on tremendous problems of increased military power, he is keenly aware of the moral and political issues which have made those preparations necessary. What we are preparing to defend for ourselves and mankind at large, he told me, is the magnificent proposition 'that all men are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' We know that General Eisenhower is right. This view should reinforce our resolve to maintain the strength of our moral leadership."

Mr. Lazarus reported that he had observed, on business travels in the U.S., that there had been "a genuine reduction in group tensions."

test meetings, he said, the support of important figures and elements in the broader Australian community was enlisted. Members of the Australian senate as well as such persons as Herbert Evatt, one of the principle leaders of the Labor Party in Australia, joined the campaign.

The drive by the Jewish community against the threat of German immigration to Australian democracy represented the first occasion when Australian Jewry found itself in opposition to an official government policy, he pointed out, adding: "We learned in this campaign that through unity, singleness of purpose, and a deep belief in the justice of our cause we can make an effect upon the nation." He also pointed out that the efforts of the World Jewish Congress, to which the Executive Council is affiliated, in the same field of fighting German immigration were appreciated.

Mr. Green, who was active in the organization of the YMHA in Australia, volunteered for the Australian army upon the outbreak of World War II and served as a Lieutenant until he was invalided out in 1944. Foundation president of the Victorian Jewish Ex-Serviceman's Rehabilitation Board, he served as senior vice-president of the Executive Council of Australian Jewry for two terms before being elected president.
